WORK EXPERIENCE

02/04/2019 - CURRENT - London, United Kingdom

GP in Barnet, London

NHS

Overall

I dedicated most of my professional and extra-professional time in studying and implementing the best ways to increase the efficacy of medical interventions to reduce risky lifestyles. In collaboration with the World Health Organization and the European Commission, I utilised and contributed to develop primary care evidence-based strategies based on Brief Interventions, Brief Motivational Interview, Capacity building and Coping strategies. I am the author of more than 100 scientific publications in peer and non peer-reviewed journals.

This scientific background supports me in applying individual empowerment to my patients and giving me high resilience to hard work. Neuroscience is at the base of human behaviour, of my research and of my teaching activity. The implementation of such work gave me the opportunity to involve, with an integrated approach, systems such as Local Authorities, Health Companies and Social Services. During my Office hours I managed patients' illnesses with a special focus on COPD, Asthma and Allergies.

I worked as a specialist in Respiratory diseases and Occupational Medicine, privately, for individuals and Companies.
